Overview

Many of Scott's clients are business owners with a passion and a vision for their company and their people. He represents families who've grown their business from the ground up and want to pass it on to the next generation. His clients appreciate his commitment to helping them achieve their goals.

Scott represents a wide variety of businesses and their owners, senior management, investors and lenders in mergers and acquisitions, divestitures and business succession planning. He also assists with debt and private equity financing, joint ventures, distribution, supply and other commercial agreements, employment and non-compete agreements, commercial real estate acquisitions, sale, leasing and financing transactions, and international law matters.

Scott often serves as outside general counsel to his business clients, advising them with respect to corporate governance, risk management, and other legal and business matters. He also assists entrepreneurs and emerging companies with matters relevant to newly formed and rapidly growing businesses, including selecting a proper choice of entity, evaluating business plans, obtaining start-ups and ongoing equity and debt financing. This includes protecting and licensing intellectual property, preparing agreements among owners, and developing executive and key employee incentive compensation arrangements.
