

Represented a Logging Company in a Lawsuit Involving Allegations of Trespass

Matthew Kees represented a logging company in a lawsuit involving allegations of trespass that essentially put the company's business activities on hold. After a weeklong trial, the trespass claim was dismissed and an easement over the property was established allowing the company to continue doing business as normal.

PROFESSIONALS

Matthew Kees
Partner

RELATED SERVICES

General Liability